Get Out Your Aggression Healthily With This Easy Yoga Move

2020 has brought us a lot of things that as a global community we don't really know how to process. One of those things is anger. Anger, frustration, aggression-- whatever you want to call it, a lot of us are feeling it, and we don't always have a healthy way to let it out.

So you know those weird, hokey yoga videos where the person looks a little crazy as they show you how to breathe out like a lion and stuff like that? Yeah, this is one of those.

In this video, Zoom Vacations co-founder, Bryan Herb demonstrates a simple and effective yoga move, geared towards getting out our frustrations in a healthy way.

Note: there is yelling involved.
As with any yoga practice, please consult your doctor before attempting this move.

World AIDS Day

Today is World AIDS day, a day when individuals and organizations across the globe draw attention to the HIV epidemic, to increase HIV awareness and information, and certainly to speak against HIV stigmas that still exist worldwide.

It is an important day. For me, it is also a day where I pay tribute and remembrance to friends I have lost to this disease, and to the friends and families who are left behind.

Touring Bonneville Salt Flats

Zoom Vacations co-owners Joel Cabrera and Bryan Herb discuss Bryan's trip to the national parks. Bryan gives his tips for Bonneville Salt Flats, outside of Salt Lake City.

The Bonneville Salt Flats are found west of the Great Salt Lake, in western Utah, covering 30,000 acres. A salt crust ranging from a few inches to 5 feet thick forms a perfectly flat, uniform, blindingly white crust as far as the eye can see.

Fun Facts From Around the World

BERLIN (Reuters): Two German entrepreneurs have devised a way for passive-aggressive citizens to blow off some steam - dial a telephone number and give the person on the other end a verbal lashing. The swearing hotline, known as "Schimpf-los" ("swear away") in German, has operators standing by seven days a week for frustrated individuals to jeer at and taunt using the most unsavory language they can muster. "We don't judge people who are angry," said Ralf Schulte, who set up the hotline with his fellow media services provider Alexander Brandenburger.

"It happens. It's natural. With us you can blow off steam no strings attached," 41-year-old Schulte told Reuters.

The service costs 1.49 euros per minute - a figure Schulte feels is completely justified. "For getting everything off your chest, it's a bargain."
